Haunted by Fairles.

"It is surprising," said Police Supt. Campbell, of Brooklyn, "how many men there are in active life who, while successful in their own business, and apparently sound in general, have some vagary which, when uppermost in their conversation, raises a serious doubt about their mental condition. I have a number of such visitors, and I have been in the habit of sending them to the Commissioners of Charities, bat recently they sent me word that if they should undertake to care for eranks it would take an asylum ten times as big as they have got. An intelligent man of polite addre-s called upon me some months ago, and said that he had a complaint to make which he had put off speaking about as long as possible, but he was annoyed almost to death, and wanted police halp. State your case,' I said. 'Well, there is an extension to my house, and the roof is just off my sleeping room. Now, every night a big crowd of tricies congregate there, and more every sort of mischief.'

"What P' said I.

"Fai ies," he said: "friries."

"'()h,' I said, 'I never saw one.' He seemed surprised, and when I asked him to describe them he said they were little people of both sexes, about two or three feet ta'l, dressel in fantastic costumes and with funny faces.

""What do they do?" I asked. "Oh, they claster and dance and play, and ran to the window and make frees at me, and run away again. They keep it up all the night and I cin't get any slee, and I'm not going to stand it any longer. It's been going on now for months, and it is injuring my health' Seeing that the in in was in earne t, and that the best way to take him was the most serious way, I said: This is an outrage, and must be stopped. That's what I'm here for, and the fairies must get out or I will, depend on that. Now, I'll investigate this, matter, and you won't be troubled again. You go to bed to night and go to seep, and you'll hear no more of the fairies.' Three months passed, and the man and his story had almost passed out of my mind, when one day he came into my office, saying, 'Here I am again!'

"'What's the matter now?' I asked.
"'Fairies,' said he, 'the same old fairies.'

broken up that gang of fairies.

"Well, he said, after you drove them off, I didn't see or hear anything more of them until last night, when they came back again. Now I must ask you to attend to them again.'

"I promised him that I would, and he went away thanking me, and as I haven't heard from him since I suppose that I have banished the spirits as successfully as before.

"A few days ago a gentleman who is well known in business in New York, and lives in the vicinity of the Heights, called upon me and complained that he was intensely annoyed by boys following him about, crying "Cat! cat! cat! Every morning as he passed from his house to the ferry, he was pursued by boys uttering these cries; that they followed him on the ferry-hoat with their noises and to his place of business. He only escaped them when he went inside to work. When he came out at uoon they began to annoy him again with the cries, and as soon as he stepped out from the restaurant where he took his lunch, the cry of 'Cat! cat! cat!' again rang in his ears. He could not get in a stage, or cross the street, or step out of door but that the cries of 'Cat! cat! cat!' would reach his cars.

"Why do you suppose that you are so annoyed? I asked. On, he said, I suppose it is because I believe in feeding all the cats that come to my place, and wheaever I see a cat I want to feed it. I suppose when a cat's hungry I've got to feed it, haven't I? "Certainly," I said, but can you describe those who amoy you?'

"Now that's the worst of it,' he said. I have never seen them.
Pshaw! if I could see them I wouldn't ask help of anybody. I would redress my wrongs myself. But these cries seem to come from invisible persons, right ont of the air.

"I called in the captain of the police precinet where my visitor hived, told him the story, and gave him instructions to put a stop to this outrage, and that is the last I heard of the man haunted with the cries of 'Cat! cat! cat!"—N. Y. Sun.

King Henry's Arm and Edward's Burleycorn.

There is little difficulty now about fixing the standard, but in early times, when science had not attained its present exactness, there were constant bickerings and wrangles. Perhaps the first successful attempt to obtain uniformity was achieved by Henry I., who settled the matter by a decision curiously arbitrary and final. The yard was to be the standard of every measure, and the length of the yard was not a matter of feet or inches but was laid down once for all as the length of the King's arm. The decision was apparently simple, and intended to be final. The King often settled in person matters of dispute between his subjects, and in differences as to questions of measurement there could always be a ready reference to the royal arm. Somehow it did not seem to oceur to Henry I. that one of his arms might be longer than another, or that if he practiced archery or otherwise developed the muscles of his upper limbs the standard might be iluctuating. Moreover, it did not at all follow that his son would have an equally long arm, and, if the heir to the throne were a princess, e'ements of great confusion were introduced in what was intended to be final.

In Edward II.'s time a new criterion was hit upon. The standard was settled by statute which ordained that "three barleycorns sound and dry should make an inch." As compared with measurement by the royal arm this standard was almost democratie in its suggestion, but the barleycorn showed nnmistakably the predominance of the agricultural interest. The inch being thus ascertained, it was easy to construct from that datum the foot, yard, perch, and even the acre. The barleycorn, indeed, figures constantly in attempts to arrive at the methods of computation. The object, however, seems to have heen to get a standard that was accessible rather than one that was invariable. The authorities realized that seeds plucked from the full ear were more popular as a reference than the proportions of the royal arm. What was done with the inch had already been done with the onnce. The consent of the whole realm was obtained to the proposal put forward in the fifty-first year of Henry III., that twenty pennies should make an ounce, and that one penny should weigh thirty-two wheat-corns taken from the midst of the ear of corn. And so matters stood for many years.— London Globe.

Our patrons may rely upon having their favors printed in six thousand papers during the week, all of which will be circulated where they will be of limited.

COUNTY POINTS.

GERMANTOWN.

A large and fashlonable asembly gathered in the Christian Church at this place on Nov. 23, 1882, at 10 o'clock, a. m., to witness the bridal ceremony of Miss Hattie G. Frazce, only daughter of our worthy citizen, Joseph T. Frazce, to Mr. Raleigh K. Hart of Fleming county. The bride is one of Mason counties most lovely and nopular young ladies, true, and beautiful in all popular young ladies, true and beautiful in all her relations to society and the church, kind and amiable in disposition, she is immensely beloved.

The groom is a prominent and well known citizen of his county, belonging to one of its most respectable families.

The ceremony was performed by Elder J. Irwin West, in his usual felicitous style. The attendants were MIss Sue E. Worthington and Mr. W. C. Johnson with Judge J. C. Kackley and Mr. Garret Holton as ushers. The ceremonles at the church being over quite a number of invited friends repaired to the residence of the bride's papents to partake of an elegant repast and view the many valuable and beautiful articles presented to the bride by loving friends. ### Alice Oates Opera Company.

Next Wednesday evening the sprightly and spirited Alice Oates will appear in this city, at the Opera House, in Audran's celebrated comic opera "La Mascotte." The company is a strong one comprising as it does some of the best talent on the operatic stage. Alice Oates is perhaps unexcelled in the rendition of comic opera having developed an extraordinary ability in this comparatively unoccupied field. Mr. James Sturges as king in the Mascotte is said to be unapproachable in his interpretation of this important role in the opera. The support is well selected and very strong in comedy talent. The Portland Press says: "Alice Oates was a very vivacious and Fenchy Bettina. She threw herself into the character with unction and first gave a reminisence of Lotta and then one of Amie. She introduced as did the others a great deal of new business that pleased her hearers immensely and in her musical numbers she showed herself an accomplished vocalist."

HOW TO COOK OYSTERS.

Prepared for the Daily Bulletin by Mr. John Wheeler.

PANNED OYSTERS.

Take a can, drain them and see that no bits of shelfs adhere to the oysters; put them into a hot pan containing a tablespoonful of butter, half a level tea spoonful of salt and a very little pepper and cook them over a hot fire until they begin to curl, about five minutes; pour them

STEWED OYSTERS.

Place the oysters with the liquor in a sauce pan, and heat them slowly in it; when just beginning to simmer, lift out the oysters and add a pint of fresh milk, season with salt and pepper and when it boils stir in two tablespoonfuls of butter; little nutmeg; moisten all with two unstir until thoroughly blended, then put in beaten eggs; floar the hands well and work the oysters and let them remain by the together; put in a cool place for two or side of the fire until very hot. Serve with three hours, then mould in cakes and fry Strain off the liquor, dip them in beaten eggs, then roll in cracker dust; heat a until of a nice brown color.

BROILED OYSTERS.

Wipe them dry, sprinkle salt and pepper upon them, and boil them upon a small gridiron. Dredge the oysters with flour if you wish to have them brown. Broil quickly and dish hot putting a tiny piece of bread on each oyster.

OYSTER PIE.

Line a deep pie plate with pie crust, fil with dry pieces of bread, cover with puff paste and bake until a light brown; have the oysters stewed by the time the crust is done, remove the upper crust and pieces of bread; put in the oysters, season them with salt, pepper and butter, then cover with the upper crust.

OYSTER OMELET.

Chop the oysters finely; beat the yolks and whites of six eggs separately; stir together a cup of milk and the yolks; seaoysters and a tablespoonful of melted butpan; when hot put the mixture into the pan; when brown on the under side it is sufficiently cooked. When you take them up lay a hot dish on them, then turn the p m upside down.

OYSTER PATTIES.

Have ready some small tins lined with puff paste; set the oysters with enough liquor to cover them, upon the stove; let them come to a boil; skim well and stir in two tablespoonfuls of butter, pepper and a pinch of salt, and two or three spoonfuls of milk; put two or three oysters in each, according to the size of the plates; cover with paste, and bake in a quick oven, twenty minutes.

OYSTER SAUSAGES.

Chop the oysters; mix with equal quantity of fine bread crumbs, and beef suet chopped very fine; add half a spoonful of salt and pepper and one of mace, a very in butter until brown.

The Best.

There are other good cooking stoves and A. J. Egnew & Co., keeps them in stock, but if there are two stoves in existence which lay just claims to superority in many respects over all others they are the OMAHA AND HOT BLAST CHARTER. We have not the space here to point out their many merits but call at our establishson with salt and pepper; add the chopped ment on Market street and we will take great pleasure in doing so there, whether ter: then whip in the whites lightly; put you wish to buy the stove or not. We Special services will be read on next Thurs- they find anything wrong in any of the three tablespoonfuls of butter in a frying consider it the best stove in the market. A. J. SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

-The electric light will affect the colors of cloths, as well as paintings, in the same way but not so quickly as sunlight.—N. Y. Herald.

-The cottonwood is abundant in Kansas, where it grows rapidly. Under the Forestry law of that State about 6,000 acres have been planted in black walnut .- Denver Tribune.

-The sorrowful tree-so named because it flourishes only at night—grows upon the Island of Goa, near Bombay. The flowers, which have a fragrant odor, appear soon after sunset the year round, and close up or fall offeas the sun

-Black birch, which is coming in favor as a substitute for black walnut, is a close-grained and handsome wood. It can readily be stained to resemble walnut, is just as easy to work, and is suitable for many of the purposes to which black walnut is applied.—N. Y.

-A report recently issued by the American Silk Association shows that it was the best year American factories have ever had, and also that it was the largest year of importation ever seen in the trade. It is estimated that the American people spent over $105,000,000 for silks in the fi-cal year ending July 1, one-third of this large sum going to our native manufacturers. - Chicago Journal.

-One of the latest notions is to have a light on the forehead of the horse. We are assured that it gives perfect safety against accident when driving after dark. No fire, no liquids, no lamp, yet a never-failing bright signal light at a great distance. It is made of metal and covered with a combination of luminous compounds; is easily attached and detached: is made in different designs, and therefore, very attractive if it should be carried in daytime. - Court Journal.

Preparing Land for a Garden.

A large proportion of farmers declare that vegetable gardens are unprofitable, that they require a large amount of work, and make a poor return for it. The truth is many exceilent farmers are very poor gardeners. They are experts in raising corn, potatoes and small grains, but they do not understand how to produce the ordinary garden vegetables. They think the land for a garden requires no special preparation, and no special manuring. It does require both. The spot selected for a garden should be well drained, and it is well to have it slope toward the south or southeast. The soil should be free from weeds, and the seeds that will produce them. Land that has long been in cultivated crops is not in a condition for a garden unless it is very highly manured. Even then it is likely to be objectionable as it is likely to be weedy. In many respecte it is better to break a piece of sod for a garden the summer before it is planted. The plowing should be well done and sufficiently early to insure the rotting of the sod. If the spot is some distance from the farm buildings it will not be likely to be visited by fowls and require no fence to protect it. A garden spot should be liberally manured, and the materials used for fertilizing should be well rotted. It is best to apply the manner the fall before the ground is planted, so it can be incorporated with the soil. If the manure is spread on inverted sod it will help rot it, while the seeds it contains will germinate, and the plants they produce can be hilled with a harrow or other implement. Land which requires as ninch labor as a garden should be very rich. It should receive as much as fifty wagon-loads of stable mamire to the acre in order to be as productive as most market gardens in the vicinity of large cities are. - Chicago Times.

-It is reported that English detect ives have proved useless in Ireland, on account of their accent. We should think so. It rather gives a fellow away, bajove, when he walks into a Land League meeting in a damp cave and asks: 'Beg pawd'n, y' know, but ave ye seen such a thing as a suspect about ere, y' know?"-Chicago Times.
